"It is change, continuing change, inevitable change, that is the dominant factor in society today.
No sensible decision can be made any longer without taking into account not only the world as it is, but the world as it will be."

– Isaac Asimov

February 2023

When Larry Jackson first dreamt us up, there were no VODs, no blu-rays, no DVDs, not even VHS. When he first conjured a community event lasting 24 hours, the words "binge view" had no meaning.

We have changed. The world has changed. The world that may be will change. At Boston SciFi, we imagine a world that "may be" by using images and conversations—and into this world we invite folks from all over to share their ideas, their thoughts, their experiences. As we experience all of this, we will change, we will grow. That shared growth helps form our community.

Hal Wagner, Larry Jackson, Bruce Bartoo, and Garen Daly

And I, for one, love this community. It is smart, compassionate, and curious.

The SF48 Team has worked hard to shape this festival. They brought their "A" game to the table. That's why you will meet nearly 45 film directors, film crew, and artists in our five days in February. These directors and artists will in turn meet a remarkable community that is dedicated to science, science fiction, and the dream of exploration.

If Isaac Asimov were around today, I am confident he would applaud us for we are the world as it will be.

Thank you all for making this dream special.

Filmmakers!

Boston Sci-Fi can help market your films across the Universe! We are partnering with Vuulr— a B2B digital film and tv marketplace that showcases content instantly to a trusted global community of buyers, reaching new audiences and new markets all day, every day. Buyers can go from content discovery to deal in days, instead of months. Negotiations and transactions are done entirely online, creating time- and cost-savings for buyers and sellers alike. Join Boston SciFi's individual "screening room" with a trailer and description of your film, then network and market with a vast array of content in the same genre. No long searches, no being buried in an avalanche of unnecessary content, no initial fees of any kind! Contact jmcomnnet@gmail.com to learn how Boston SciFi can help you get your work out there!

The Time Traveler's Ball

Whovians of the galaxy, come one come all, to the kick-off event of this year's Boston Science Fiction Film Festival—The Time Traveler's Ball. At 9:00 p.m., the TARDIS doorway to the Somerville Theatre's beautiful Crystal Ballroom will whoosh you into the timey wimey party and, yes, it's bigger on the inside. Enjoy a themed cocktail at our cash bar, stirred with sonic screwdrivers. Whirl yourself into a vortex on the dance floor to tunes from our retro DJ. Costumes are encouraged. Fezzes are cool after all. The time lords have some fabulous prizes awaiting those who enter the costume contest. Test your knowledge of who's who of Who with our trivia quiz. And you'll surely want pictures with our props and green screen.

Come to the Ball. You're sure to have the time of your life!

Did you Know? The 5th Doctor wore a piece of celery in his left lapel. He claimed the celery would turn purple in the presence of gasses to which he was allergic.

Asimov's Robots

BostonSciFi presents....

You Solve It!

ROBOTS
An Experimental Game

Thu. Feb 16 • 7 pm
Somerville Theatre

Tickets: BostonSciFi.com

Venture with us 3,000 years into the future via the technology and production values of the... 1980's, aided by the classic character traits of 1950's detective novels.

In 1953, Isaac Asimov wrote a serialized story for Galaxy Magazine called "The Caves of Steel." It introduced a human detective and his robot partner.

They in turn became recurring protagonists for Asimov's subsequent Robot novels, The Naked Sun and Robots of Dawn.

In 1986, Asimov and the Kodak company partnered for a VCR game based loosely on "The Caves of Steel," in which a detective and his robot partner have 24 hours to solve an attempted murder or face a possible takeover of Earth. It's got robots, underground cities, and future Earth colonies. A gumshoe, a scientist, dames, and clues to help you solve the who-done-it. Plus, visibly 1980's production values originally from a VCR... to make us all feel better about ourselves.

All we need is you.
Form a team! Have fun!

The Satellites for Whom We've Named Our Short Film Programs

Omid — Iran's first domestically made satellite is also the Persian name for "hope." Launched on February 2, 2009, this data-processing satellite was made for research and telecommunications.

Telstar — Launched by NASA on July 10, 1962 this privately sponsored satellite relayed the world's first transatlantic television signal. It was a precursor for today's global telecommunication networks. The first images it transmitted included those of President John F. Kennedy, Mount Rushmore and an American flag waving in the wind.

Asterix — Named after a French comics character, this was France's first satellite. The satellite's purpose was to test the rocket Diamant's launcher. While other satellites are no longer in use, Asterix continues to orbit the earth and is expected to do so for centuries.

Helios — This joint effort between NASA and the German Aerospace Center launched a pair of probes into heliocentric orbit to study solar processes. The first probe was launched on December 10, 1974 and the second on January 15, 1976. Though no longer functional, they remain in elliptical orbits around the sun.

Hisaki — The Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency launched this satellite on September 14, 2013. This astronomy satellite is used to observe the ultraviolet light of the solar system planets.

Danuri — This newer satellite launched less than a year ago on August 4, 2022 is the Republic of South Korea's first lunar orbiter. In addition to being a technology demonstrator, this satellite will survey lunar resources like water, ice, uranium and helium in order to produce a topographical map to select future lunar landing sites.

Morelos — The first in a series of Mexican communications satellites was launched June 17, 1985. The purpose of these satellites was to provide telephony, data and television services over the territory of the Mexican Republic and adjacent areas. This was Mexico's first venture into using satellites.

ArgoMoon — This unique miniaturized satellite known as a CubeSat was launched on November 16, 2022. The objective of this satellite is to take detailed images of the Interim Cryogenic Propulsion Stage following separation of the Orion spacecraft.

Nahuel — This communications satellite known as a Spacebus came out of Argentina and was launched on January 30, 1987 holding its relative position in geosynchronous orbit.

Ariel — Named after a sprite in Shakespeare's The Tempest, this joint mission between the United States and Great Britain was launched on April 26, 1962. The satellite's purpose was to provide X-ray data for solar flares..

20 Million Miles to Earth • US • 1957 • 1h 22m •

The first US spaceship to Venus crash lands off the coast of Italy, bringing back a lizard-like creature who quickly grows gigantic. Ray Harryhausen effects (Earth vs. the Flying Saucers).

Aletia, The Queen of Mars • US • 1924 • Silent • 1h 51m •

Los, a young inventor from Moscow, travels to Mars after receiving a mysterious radio messages. There, with the support of Queen Aelita, he leads an uprising against a group of evil Elders on Mars.

Fiend Without a Face • US • 1958 • 1h 15m •

In this nightmarish chiller, a scientist's thoughts materialize as an army of invisible brain-shaped monsters terrorize an American military base.

First Spaceship to Venus • Germany • 1960 • 1h 19m •

When an alien artifact on Earth is found to be from Venus, a team of international scientists embark on mission to discover its origins.

Invasion of the Bee Girls • US • 1973 • 1h 26m •

A powerful cosmic force is turning Earth women into queen bees who kill men by wearing them out sexually.

Rocketship X-M • US • 1950 • 1h 19m •

A crew of astronauts on an expedition to the Moon are unexpectedly propelled by gravitational forces and end up on Mars instead. Stars Lloyd Bridges.

Space Command • US • 1953 • 26m • Space Command was a Canadian children's sci-fi TV series—CBC Television's first original dramatic series.

Tales of Tomorrow • US • 1953 • 21m • Blamed on H- bomb testing, a mysterious phenomenon causes people to lose their vocal cords. Burgess Meredith stars.

The Brain that Wouldn't Die • US • 1962 • 1h 22m •

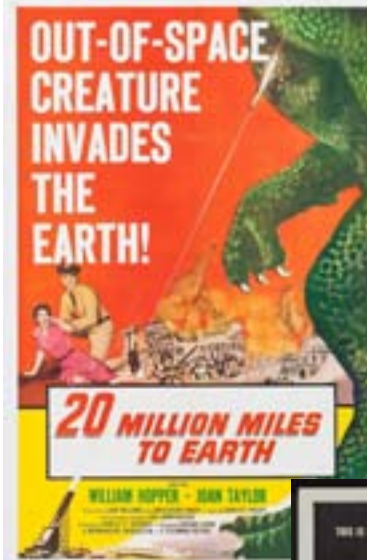

A doctor, experimenting with transplant techniques, keeps his girlfriend's head alive when she is decapitated in a car crash while hunting for a new body for her.

The Brother from Another Planet • US • 1984 • 1h 48m •

A mute alien with the appearance of a typical human is chased by outer-space bounty hunters through the streets of Harlem. Written and directed by John Sayles.

Warning from Space • Japan • 1956 • 1h 27m •

UFO's carrying giant starfish-like aliens are seen around Tokyo. One of the aliens takes the form of a popular female singer to warn mankind of a meteor that will crash on Earth.

The 24 Hour Marathon

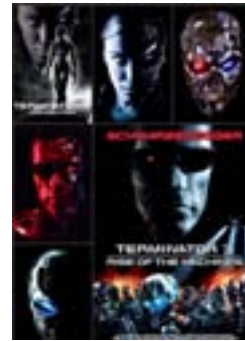

We've been at this for 48 years, which makes one of the oldest genre film festivals in together in a beautiful, vintage movie the current, to the classic, to the occasional

We're back this year with a great line-up, the pre-show. Then, the 'Thon launches at cheer, and the Warner Brothers' classic 1953 cartoon Duck Dodgers in the 24½th Century. This year's lineup includes 13 features, short films, tributes, games, and other fun—both planned and impromptu.

our 24-hour cornucopia of motion pictures America—a community once again coming theatre to watch a full day of cinema, from dash of beloved, bewildering B-movie fun.

so come early to the Somerville Theatre for 12 noon, as always, with a fireball, a robust

12:00 p.m. Stargate 1994 • United States • 1h 56m • Rated PG-13 • 35mm

This 1994 hit about an interstellar teleportation device that conveys its users to a planet with human-like beings who resemble ancient Egyptians spawned several TV series. Directed by Roland Emmerich. Starring James Spader, Kurt Russell, Viveca Lindfors, Mili Avital, Alexis Cruz, and The Crying Game's Jaye Davidson in his final major acting role. Stargate makes its formal Boston SciFi Marathon debut, having only played the "Nightflight" at SF20 at the Coolidge Corner Theatre in 1995.

02:15 p.m. Escape from the Planet of the Apes 1971 • United States • 1h 38m • Rated G • 35mm

Many consider this sequel, the third film in the Planet of the Apes series, the most fun as our simian heroes shock the world after arriving in modern Los Angeles in a U.S. spacecraft. Directed by Don Taylor. Roddy McDowall and Kim Hunter return as Cornelia and Zira, joined here by Bradford Dillman, Eric Braeden (Dr. Forbin in Colossus: The Forbin Project), and Ricardo Montalban.

04:00 p.m. Terminator 3: Rise of the Machines 2003 • United States • 1h 49m • Rated R • 35mm

Director Jonathon Mostow takes over for James Cameron, as three screenwriters collaborate on a plot that has a grown John Connor (Nick Stahl) facing a more advanced "female" Terminator, the T-X (Kristaana Loken). Also starring Arnold Schwarzenegger, returning here as the outmoded prototype from the post-apocalyptic future, Claire Danes, and Earl Boen.

06:00 p.m. After Yang 2021 • United States • 1h 36m • Rated PG

One of last year's best science fiction releases about a robot named Yang and the family who treats him as one of their own. Directed by Kogonada (of the similarly paced 2017 film Columbus). Stars Colin Farrell, Jodie-Turner Smith, Haley Lu Richardson (Kogonada's lead actress in Columbus), and Malea Emma Tjandrawidjaja as the parents' adopted daughter. Affecting music by Aska.

07:45 p.m. Back to the Future II 1989 • United States • 1h 48m • Rated PG • 70mm

Yikes—Biff's stolen the DeLorean! Back to the Future II makes its 24-hour Marathon debut in glorious 70mm. This middle segment of the trilogy lands Michael J. Fox, as Marty McFly, in the far off time of 2015. Directed by Robert Zemeckis. Elizabeth Shue replaces Claudia Wells as Jenny. The cast also includes Christopher Lloyd (back again as "Doc" Emmett Brown), Lea Thompson (returning as Marty's mother Lorraine), Billy Zane, and Tom Wilson. Oscar nominated for Visual Effects.

09:40 p.m. Happy Accidents 2000 • United States • 1h 50m • Rated R

This quirky time travel, romantic fantasy stars Marisa Tomei as Ruby and Vincent D'Onofrio as Sam, who's trying desperately to convince Ruby that he really is from 2470. The film's time travel involves scientific discoveries by a scientist named "Blinovitch"—a named which originated in the time travel law known as the "Blinovitch Limitation Effect" in multiple Doctor Who series. Directed and written by Brad Anderson (Frankenstein's Planet of Monsters, Next Stop Wonderland). Happy Accidents was a hit at SF27 in 2002.

11:40 a.m. Bill & Ted
Face the Music 2020 • United States • 1h 31m • Rated PG-13

Actors Keanu Reeves and Alex Winter, of the preceding films in this series, return years later to... well...face the music. Now middle-aged, these these once-and-future time traveling rockers, Bill & Ted, are still chasing the rock 'n' roll dream. The cast includes Samara Weaving, Anthony Carrigan, Kid Cudi, and William Sadler, plus cameos from "Weird Al" Yankovic, Dave Grohl, and George Carlin (archive footage). Directed by Dean Parisot.

01:20 a.m. Godzilla 1954 • Japan • 1h 36m • Not Rated • 35mm

Original Japanese cut in 35mm. Directed by Inoshiro Honda. Folks who have only seen the Raymond Burr version may be surprised at how sober and serious this uncut, subtitled edition is. Honda was an assistant to the great Akira Kurosawa and he brings along actor Takashi Shimura as Dr. Yamane who tries to figure out how and why an ancient radioactive beast is wreaking havoc in post-war Japan. Akira Ifukube's landmark score has been used and re-interpreted throughout the history of the title beast's movies for decades since. Godzilla has previously shown at SF8 (1983) and SF30 (2005)—both times in this original version.

03:00 a.m. Future Kill 1985 • United States • 1h 29m • Rated X in 1985 • 35mm

The poster for Future Kill was designed by H.R. Giger. The artist's signature work and the re-uniting of the original Texas Chainsaw Massacre stars Edwin Neal and Marilyn Burns were the biggest selling points of this Texas-shot Road Warrior meets Animal House thriller. The cast also includes soon-to-be Leatherface Bill Johnson (Texas Chainsaw Massacre 2) and future Oscar nominee John Hawkes in his debut. Directed by Ronald W. Moore.

04:30 a.m. La Jetée 1962 • France • 28m • Not Rated

Directed by Chris Marker, La Jetée was recently named to the Sight & Sound list of the greatest films ever made. A brilliant time travel, mind expanding film comprised almost entirely of still images. Even at 28 minutes, Marker creates a stunning film, which has been influential ever since (including Terry Gilliam's adaptation 12 Monkeys).

05:10 a.m. UForia 1984 • United States • 1h 33m • Rated PG • 35mm

Offbeat UFO comic mystery with a cast including the late Cindy Williams, Fred Ward, and Harry Dean Stanton. The film sat on the shelf for a couple of years and barely got released despite rave reviews. Early Boston SciFi Marathon organizer, JD Pollack, was involved in trying to get the film seen. It's not on home video save for a lone OOP VHS tape. Presented at the Marathon on 35mm film—the only way to see Uforia uncut and with its original music!

24-hour Marathon

06:55 a.m. Beyond the Time Barrier 1960 • United States • 1h 14m • Not Rated

In addition to this film, screenwriter Arthur C. Pierce's other scripts included The Cosmic Man, Navy vs. the Night Monsters, Destination Inner Space, and Cyborg 2087 (a clear influence on the Terminator movies). Directed by Edgar Ulmer. Future Oscar-winning director Sidney Lumet worked in the casting of the film, which included Ulmer's daughter Arianne, Darlene Tompkins, and veteran character actor Vladimir Sokoloff as the Supreme Leader. A family affair, Ulmer's wife Shirley was the Script Supervisor.

08:20 a.m. Alien 1979 • United Kingdom / United States • 1h 57m • Rated R • 35mm

Original theatrical cut in 35mm. Directed by Ridley Scott. The classic "haunted house" film in space, Alien took some cues from IT! The Terror from Beyond Space and Planet of the Vampires, but brought the genre up several notches. Excellent visuals topped-off by the H.R. Giger-designed title beast. Excellent score by Jerry Goldsmith. Alien previously played at SF7 (1982) and SF29 (2004). Winner of the Visual Effects Oscar and nominated for Art Direction.

10:30 a.m. Total Recall 1990 • United States / Mexico • 1h 53m • Rated R

Based on a Philip K. Dick story, Arnold Schwarzenegger stars as an "ordinary" man thrust into a Martian action film nightmare when he has false memories implanted and meets-up with spies, agents, and three-breasted women. Also featuring Sharon Stone, Rachel Ticotin, Michael Ironside, and Ronny Cox. Directed by Paul Verhoeven. Score by Jerry Goldsmith. Oscar winner for Visual Effects and nominated for two Sound awards. Previously played the Marathon in 1991 at SF16.

Marathon Covid Policy

We are thrilled to bring a fully realized in-person Marathon back to the Somerville Theatre. We ask all attendees to use good judgment. Wear a face mask, if you wish. Be courteous to those around you. And follow the instructions of the venue management and staff. If you have any questions, please stop by the lobby table at the Somerville Theatre.
